

Greer in her Caltech lab, holding a model of the atomic structure of a metal.

Photographs by Anais & Dax

Top right: These discs are used to store nanoscale lattices. Bottom right: A scanning electron microscope has an arm that can compress and bend nanostructures.

